

Are You Coming? Matthew 4:12-23

Adventures In Faith

How are you called to serve the church during this season of your life?

Sunday, we will hear the gospel lesson from Matthew 4:12-23 in which Jesus calls his first disciples into ministry with him. You might take some time to read that passage this week, whether you are thoroughly familiar with it or have no idea what it says. It provides an excellent reminder at the outset of the year that we are all called into companionship and service with Jesus.

Sometimes the call is an obvious one, as is Jesus' call to the fishermen on the beach. "Come and follow me, and I will give you something to do." Such a call comes in the phone of a conversation in which you are tapped to serve on a committee or to help with a project or to join a group, and you realize that the invitation is the first step in a new call. Sometimes a call is much more subtle -- you have a sense that there's something you'd like to be involved in, or you read an article or see something in the news and think, "That might be for me."

I invite you this week to consider how you are called to be engaged in the life of this congregation. Pay attention to your thoughts, your prayers, and your conversations, as well as to what you read and what you see on TV. You might be surprised!
